STATE POLICE GUARD MILK TRUCKS IN UNION SQUABBLE AT TINLEY

Ever since Irving Bettenhausen has started a retail milk route in Tinley Park and Oak Forest, he says he has had trouble with a rival union. Mr. Bettenhausen is a member of local 801 of milk drivers and his milk truck drivers are union men he says.

Wednesday morning two auto loads of members of a rival union with a truck appeared and tried to prevent Mr. Bettenhausen from getting milk from the farmers he claims. He had advance information of what was coming so he had two armed state police under command of Sergeant Orgle riding on each truck and no further trouble was encountered. Mr. Bettenhausen says he will have armed protection for his trucks as long as any attempt is made to interfere with his business.

Mr. Bettenhausen was in Chicago Wednesday and got a written agreement from all the milk dealers that they will all stand by him in this fight.

Wm. Kampe In Race For Supervisor

Wm. Kampe also of Frankfort township, the present supervisor, is a candidate for re-election.

The many friends of the supervisor say that he has made an excellent record during his term of office and has done creditable work for his township.

Surprised on Wedding Day

Sunday January 29th was a gala day for Mr. and Mrs. William Scheer of Tinley Park. They were greatly surprised when six autos entered their yard all at once and a large group of relatives and friends reminded them that this was their wedding anniversary. The guests were:

Mr. and Mrs. Boyer and family, Mr. and Mrs. Goltz, Mr. and Mrs. Adams and son, Mr. and Mrs. Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. Lauer, Miss Heen, Missfield of Matteson, Mr. and Mrs. Orville Foster and son of Chicago Heights, Mr. and Mrs. George Felix and daughter of Beverly Hills, Ed-Hunstock of Tinley Park.

Songs were sung by the choir, Mr. Anderson instructor.

Supper was served, the guests having brought lunch baskets filled with many good things to eat.

Games were the chief diversion, buncos being the most popular.

All enjoyed a good time and extended wishes to the honored couple for many more anniversaries.

TINLEY PARK NIAGARI GIRLS CLUB

The Niagara meeting was held at Mrs. Swisher's home January 28 and was called to order by our president, Eileen Mohr. The minutes were approved as read.

There was a discussion about whether the club would divide into two groups or stay together and they finally decided to stay together.

The next meeting will be Feb. 25, so let's all try to be present.

Tinley German M. E. To Hold Bazaar

Wednesday afternoon and evening February 8th, will be a busy time at the Community Hall in Tinley Park. The Ladies Aid of the German Methodist church has chosen this time for its bazaar, supper and Lincon Program. During the afternoon, beginning at 2:30 the bazaar will be in progress. Fancy work and other useful embroidered articles as well as candy, butter and eggs will be on sale. Between 5:30 and 8:00 p. m. a generous and tasty supper will be served in the Community Hall Basement. Between 8 and 8:15 members of the Tinley Park band will give a band program. Thereafter there will be other numbers, including vocal music and a one act play, entitled "Ask Nancy!" The latter has been under the direction of Mrs. Albert Felton. The main feature of the evening will be an address by a well known minister, and legionnaire, the Rev. Frank Coats will speak upon the subject "Abraham Lincoln". The program, decorations and general atmosphere will be commemorative of Lincoln's Birthday, which is to be celebrated on the following Sunday. The supper and entertainment are included in one price. Come, bring your friends and enjoy yourselves at a good evening's entertainment!

F. E. Yunker Not A Candidate

The many friends of Fred E. Yunker the present tax collector of Orland township have been urging him to throw his hat in the ring for re-election for this office and a petition was started and quite a number of names were secured on the petition. Mr. Yunker, however, has decided to withdraw from the race in favor of the other candidates in the field. Mr. Yunker appreciates the fine support the voters of Orland township gave him by electing him twice to the office and thanks them for the support shown him now.

Wm. Lankenau Candidate for Supv. Frankfort Twp.

The political pot in Frankfort is starting to get hot already. The fight at the town election in April will center on the supervisorship.

Quite a surprise was sprung this week when the news came out that Wm. Lankenau, president of the Frankfort State Bank and former supervisor of Frankfort township is a candidate for supervisor of Frankfort township.

Tinley Band Concert Coming Event

The Tinley Park Band will give their first band concert Sunday afternoon, February 26th at 2 p. m., at the Tinley Park school auditorium. Special features will be Mr. Joseph Baland, Radio star, also George Weissner's famous German Band.

The Tinley Park band has made wonderful progress in the short time that they have been organized and the community of Tinley Park should be proud to have such an organization in their midst. Let's all spend this Sunday afternoon with the band and by doing this you will be helping them in many ways. See next week's paper for more details.

Henry Killmer Former Tinley Resident Dies In Homewood

Henry J. Killmer a resident of Homewood for the past seven years, died in the Ingalls Memorial hospital in Harvey, Sunday morning following an illness of several months duration. An operation was performed last week in an effort to save or prolong his life, but the effort proved of no avail. He was 64 years old.

The late Mr. Killmer was well known throughout southern Cook County having owned and operated a farm in the Tinley Park district for more than twenty-five years. He retired seven years ago and moved his family to Homewood. He made many new friends in this community. His death will be mourned by all who knew him.

Funeral services were held on Wednesday afternoon, February 1st at the late home in Homewood Ill. at 1:30 o'clock. Church services were held in the Coopers Grove Lutheran church at two o'clock. Interment was made in the Coopers Grove cemetery.

Surviving are the widow, Caroline Killmer, one daughter Mrs. Anna Goessel formerly of Tinley Park, and three sons, George, Walter and Henry, Jr.

Meat Truck Skids Into Rock Island Train at Oak Forest

The inhabitants of Oak Forest had a free meat supply thrown in their midst Sunday morning when a Swift meat truck inbound from St. Louis with a load of "sowbelly" and sausage casings, was wrecked on the 159th street crossing at Oak Forest. Two men were in the truck cab. They saw the crossing signal flashing the approach of a train. The pavement was icy and when the driver tried to apply the breaks, the truck skidded into the side of a fast east bound passenger train. The truck was hurled back on the west-bound main track in front of a fast freight train also east bound. The drivers of the truck had a miraculous escape from death, suffering only minor injuries while the big truck was a total wreck. Its load of meat was scattered for hundreds of feet. A short while after the smash, all the meat had disappeared, some of it going to Tinley Park.

The east bound freight had been routed on the west-bound main line track at Mokena and was making the run there to Blue Island.

Bettenhausen Named State Motor Cop

Irving Bettenhausen who was formerly a county motor-cycle cop and who has been out of the service for a few months, has been re-appointed to this job as a state highway cop and will take charge of his job this week. His station will be at 123rd and Cicero. He will also patrol the Tinley Park district.

Green Garden Election To Be Warm

Township politics in Green Garden are beginning to stir and a lively caucus is in view for the latter part of the month. George Bobzin, the present town clerk is a candidate for re-election.

Supposed Bank Robbers Run Into Train

What appears to have been a very speedy retribution befell three men supposed to have been the robbers who held up and robbed the Frankfort State Bank of $1100 a week ago. A report reached the bank officials the latter part of the week that a car with three men in it crashed into a freight train at the crossing in Chrisman, Illinois. The driver of the car failed to see the train due to a heavy fog. Two of the men were killed and the third one was badly injured and was taken to the hospital at Paris, Ill. Guns and $1100 in cash, mostly in $50 bills, were found in the wreckage of the automobile.

Cashier John Luhring and Miss Bernice Weichbrodt, clerk of the bank who was slugged by one of the bandits during the holdup, went to Paris last Friday. Miss Weichbrodt partially identified one of the dead men as one of the robbers, but did not identify the injured man. The two dead men are said to be brothers and came from Indiana while the injured man is from Bloomington.

Finger prints of these men have been taken and forwarded to Washington to see if they check up with the finger prints found on the glass in the bank. The money found in the auto wreck has been impounded by the authorities at Chrisman and will be held until further identification is made of the men.

State Farmers Meeting To Be Held at Joliet

The State Meeting of the Illinois Farmers' Institute, which is to be held in Joliet, February 22, 23 and 24th promises to be of unusual interest to farmers and rural home-makers. Businessmen and women, whose dependents upon the prosperity of the farmer is vital, should also take advantage of the opportunity to attend the meeting.

The present plight of the business of agriculture with constructive suggestions concerning the future will receive first consideration at the various sessions. Such speakers as Dr. C. L. Homes, United States Department of Agriculture, Bureau of Agricultural Economics, Washington, D. C., Henry A. Wallace, Editor of Wallace's Farmer; C. V. Gregory, Editor of the Prairie Farmer; Earl Smith, President of the Illinois Agricultural Association; and Dr. Frederic E. Lee, University of Illinois, will discuss economic subjects.

Professor L. F. Graber, University of Wisconsin, and Dr. W. L. Burlison, University of Illinois will present recent studies and experience on the utilization of farm land for grazing purposes. Mr. John A. Montgomery, Dexter, Missouri and Professor Sleeter Bull, University of Illinois, will discuss livestock and meats. The Farm Garden and Marketing of Poultry Products will be discussed by Lee A. Somers, University of Illinois and Professor E. R. Menefee of Purdue University.

A special program on the last afternoon will be devoted to educational subjects. Professor E. I. Pilchard, State Junior Club Leader and Mr. J. E. Hill, State Vocational Agricultural Supervisor, will be present and have demonstration terms. A noted educator, Frank D. Slutz, of Dayton, Ohio, will also address this session. In all speakers will be presented from seven states.

For detailed information concerning the program and meeting places, address E. L. Wilson, Joliet, Illinois.

Play For Mokena P. T. A. Big Success

The program put on by the Don C. Hall Co., under the auspices of the Mokena P. T. A., at the Mokena school auditorium Tuesday night was a real treat. Due to the inclement weather only a small crowd was present, but among those present were C. A. Sangmeister, Mr. Harnack and a number of friends who came all the way from Green Garden township to see the performance of "Brady's Boy." The Hall players produced the same offering recently in the Orland Park school auditorium and the Forest Ridge school near Oak Forest. They made a hit with the offering in all these places.

The Three Aces, also a part of the Hall Players furnished the music for the occasion. They played several Hawaiian guitar selections.

Fred A. Francis Elected President New Lenox Bank

Election of officers took place at the annual meeting of the stockholders of the New Lenox State Bank, held Wednesday. Those elected were: President, Fred A. Francis; Vice-President, Harry W. Storm; Cashier, G. F. Krog; Secretary, H. H. Schluntz; Directors, C. W. Batson, Archibald Corp, Fred A. Francis, George J. Hacker, John Handorf, Jr., A. R. Kercheval, Ernest Oram, H. H. Schluntz and Harry W. Storm.

Mokena Business Men Sponsor P. O. Petition

The petition which was circulated last week by O. A. Bartels, cashier of the Mokena State Bank in favor of the re-appointment of Mrs. Daisy P. Lynk as postmistress at Mokena, was sponsored by the business men of Mokena, and not by O. A. Bartels alone. The petition is to be presented this week to Christ Kohl, democratic precinct committeeman of the Mokena district for his consideration.

Two Tinley Women To Be Heard on Radio

Two Tinley women will be heard on the radio this month. Mrs. Wallace Butler Combs who is the state Garden chairman for the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs will broadcast on Monday, February 6th over WIBO from 1:20 to 1:30 p. m. Gardens and the Horticulture School of Instruction with demonstrations to be held March 1, 2, 3 at the Hotel Sherman, Chicago, will be Mrs. Combs' subject.

Mrs. Arthur Schoeneck who is an instructor in the city schools and also a resident of Tinley Park will broadcast over WMAQ from 1:15 to 1:30 p. m., on February 14th. Her subject will be "Character Education."

Be sure to listen in on these two broadcasts as they will be very interesting and doubly so as they are by some of our home folks.

Orland P. T. A. To Have Busy Week

Next week will be a busy week for the Orland Park P. T. A. On Wednesday, February 8th the regular monthly child "Welfare Clinic" will be held at the Orland Park school. Because of the interest shown and the large attendance at the last clinic it is expected that the coming session will be a record breaker.

Plans are being made to handle a capacity class and children are expected from Worth, Palos, Orland and all the surrounding community. Mothers who have children 6 years of age or under are urged to bring their children to the clinic. Those who have no means of transportation will be provided for by members of the "Friendly Committee". Any mothers in the Palos-Worth district can secure transportation by getting in touch with Mrs. Stuart Y. Patterson or Mrs. E. J. Umor of Palos Park and in the Orland district by phoning Mrs. Harry Melchor or Mrs. L. H. Arnold. The clinic will be in session from 10 a. m., until 12 o'clock noon. Bring your child and make sure that it is in proper condition to withstand the onslaught of the spring epidemic diseases which it is anticipated will be more than usually severe this year, because of the mild winter weather. On Thursday night, February 9, the Orland P. T. A. will observe the double anniversary of Founders Day and its own 5th birthday. A very interesting program is being prepared and President Arnold absolutely guarantees an evening of pleasure and profit to all who attend.

Two Banks Reduce Their Directorates

Two banks in this section have reduced their list of board of directors. The Bremen State Bank stockholders at Tinley Park have voted to reduce their board of directors from twelve to ten directors.

The Frankfort State Bank stockholders have voted to reduce their board of directors from nine to six directors.

Rep. John Walker On the Sales Tax

Rep. John Walker in commenting on the sales tax now before the legislature said the other day that he would not vote in favor of it if it is merely to be another tax, but if it is to be a replacement measure he is for it. Rep. Walker said that the rural communities are taxed to death now without loading anymore taxes on the present burden.

Woman's Club Formed at Orland

A number of women met last Monday afternoon in the Creer Hall in Orland Park for the purpose of organizing a Woman's Club. Mrs. S. Y. Patterson, president of the Palos Woman's Club, talked to the ladies and explained club work and methods of organization. It is hoped that the club may be the means of bringing together all the women of the community for mutual benefit. Thirty-four women joined the new organization as charter members.

The following officers were elected for the first year:

President, Mrs. Ella M. Loebe
1st Vice-President, Mrs. Paul Saunders
2nd Vice-President, Mrs. Harry Heiting
Recording Secretary, Mrs. Howard Hewson
Cor. Secretary, Mrs. George Gee
Treasurer, Mrs. W. R. Schussler

The regular meetings of the club will be held on the first Thursday of each month. Dues have been set at one dollar per year. All Orland women are invited to join in the work of this organization.

Mokena Garden Club

Mrs. W. G. Lowe, Pub. Chairman

The Mokena Garden Club will meet at the home of Mrs. Herman Schweser on Tuesday, February 7th at 2 p. m. Tickets can be purchased from club members. Another advantage we have this year is that we are entitled to a Flower Show directory free when buying tickets in advance. After the show opens there will be a charge for the directory. A definite price for tickets will be stated in this paper next week.

Mrs. John Schaller, Tinley Pioneer Dies In Blue Island

Mrs. John Schaller, a resident of the village of Tinley Park for over 30 years, died last Friday evening, at 6:45 o'clock in Blue Island in the home of her daughter, Mrs. Louise Juries following a paralytic stroke.

Fredrika Wilhelmina Schaller nee Schleib, was born June 14, 1847 near Ehrfurt, Germany. At the age of 7 years she came with her parents to America. On May 19, 1867 she was united in marriage with John Schaller. They resided in the Bachelor Grove territory for many years and resided in the village of Tinley Park for 30 years. Mr. Schaller passed on in 1919.

Surviving are: one daughter, Mrs. Louise Juries; two sons, Louis and John; nine grandchildren, four great grand children and Wm. Rick of Tinley Park whom she reared after the death of his mother. His father also died a number of years ago.

Funeral services were held Monday afternoon at the Bachelor Grove Lutheran church with Rev. Wm. Greve officiating. Burial was made in the Bachelor Grove Lutheran cemetery.

Mrs. Schaller appeared in quite good health during the Christmas holidays but on New Year's day she was stricken with a stroke from which she did not rally.

English Land Held by Lincoln Family

Antiquarian research has unearthed an interesting reminder of what is believed to be a link in the early history in England of Abraham Lincoln's family.

A record collated by J. E. Ansell of the Society of Genealogists shows that one Abraham Lincoln was a holder of land in Norfolk in the early part of the Eighteenth century. This record as published in the Times tells how in 1723 Abraham Lincoln and Sara, his wife, were joint vendors with Isaac Lincoln and Edward Rush and Lydia, his wife, of Garboldisham and Aldeby, Norfolk, to one Sir Edmund Bacon.—Exchange.

STATE CAPITOL NEWS

Hiram L. Williamson, Illinois Press Association

Declaring that restoration of economic prosperity overshadows all problems before the people, and pledging to do all in his power to relieve suffering, Henry Horner, Chicago, laid aside judicial robes on January 9 to become governor of Illinois. Five other officials also qualified for their respective offices. They are: Thomas F. Donovan, Joliet, lieutenant governor; Edward J. Hughes, Chicago, secretary of state; Edward J. Barrett, Chicago, auditor of public accounts; John C. Martin, Salem, state treasurer; Otto Kerner, River Forest, attorney general. Social activities in connection with the inauguration culminated in the reception given by the governor the same evening in the executive mansion and the inaugural ball held in the state arsenal. Approximately 10,000 persons passed through the reception lines at the mansion and it was estimated that from 15,000 to 20,000 attended the ball.

With a record number of bills introduced so far, legislative committees will have plenty to do as soon as they are appointed. Speaker Arthur Roe of the house has worked on Democratic committee assignments and with the aid of Floor Leader Thomas P. Sennett, expects to have them ready soon. Republican committee members will be appointed by a committee of five members headed by Minority Leader Elmer J. Schnackenberg. Senate committees will be appointed by Lieut. Gov. Thomas F. Donovan, President Pro-Tem Richey V. Graham and Minority Leader Richard J. Barr. The senate committees will be cut down in size and some may be abolished and some new ones added.

Gov. Henry Horner has begun a detailed study of the situation in the mining area of Christian county with a hope of restoring order. This important task was among the first to be undertaken by Governor Horner on his first day at the executive office. He communicated with a number of persons involved in the strike to get their views on the subject. The governor, during his many years on the bench of the Probate court of Cook county, served as mediator in more than 250 labor disputes, every one of which he settled amicably to the satisfaction of both sides.

Consolidation of offices so that Chicagoans may obtain both city and state automobile license plates at the same place in the city hall is being worked out by Mayor Cermak and Secretary of State Hughes and will go into effect in a few weeks. The Chicago license bureau will be abolished, as such, and a branch of the secretary of state's office established. Previously Chicago persons have written to the Springfield office for plates. Only the future can tell how this plan will work.

Constitutionality of the Meents bill, one of the relief measures passed at the special session of the legislature, has been attacked in a suit filed in the Sangamon county Circuit court. The Meents bill gives county boards the right to issue relief bonds for six times the amount of their share of the gasoline tax, with the bonds issued to be retired from the tax. The test case has been filed by contractors who believe the act illegal. Its enforcement, it is said, will greatly curtail road building in Illinois. Six counties of the state have already availed themselves of the provisions of the new law.

Chain stores will be taxed on an ascending scale, and independent stores will be taxed $3 each, for unemployment relief, if a bill which has been introduced by Senator Thomas P. Gunning of Princeton becomes a law. The measure requires all mercantile establishments to obtain a license from the department of trade and commerce and provides a schedule of fees.

Edward J. Smejkal, fifty-six, attorney, who served in the state assembly as representative from the Seventeenth district from 1903 to 1925, died at a hospital in Berwyn on January 8. Mr. Smejkal's home was in Riverside. During the years he was a member of the general assembly, he was numbered among its active members, being chairman of the appropriations committee several terms.

Introduction of an educational program at the Jacksonville State School for the Blind to enable the blind of the state to become self-supporting has been announced by Director Rodney H. Brandon of the department of public welfare. The ultimate objective of the program is to establish shops where the blind may be employed and retail stores to sell the products of their handiwork.

Harry W. Hanson, state superintendent of insurance, is sending out blanks to insurance companies for renewal of agents' and brokers' licenses for the year starting March 1. Among the blanks to be sent out is one for companies to give notice to the division of insurance of the termination of the appointment of any agent, showing the reason for the cancellation of the appointment and facts bearing on the character, conduct and services of the agent. If the facts justify, the division makes an investigation.

The Illinois state and county highway systems were expanded 1,528.15 miles during 1932, and that brought the total for former Gov. Louis L. Emerson's administration up to about 4,800 miles, according to figures issued by state highway officials.

America's most comprehensive clinic for the treatment of the after-effects of sleeping sickness has been established at the Dixon State hospital by the Illinois department of public welfare. There are only two other sleeping sickness clinics in the world, Director Rodney H. Brandon states, but neither of these is as extensive as the new clinic at the Dixon State hospital will be.

Fees collected by former Secretary of State William J. Stratton in the four years he was secretary of state aggregated $82,774,247.29, according to final figures compiled by the office for the four-year term. The effect of the economic depression is clearly indicated in the annual figures of the four years. In 1929, the fees collected aggregated $17,395,306.16. In 1930 this figure jumped to $22,730,735.16. In 1931 it dropped to $22,352,415.17. In 1932 the total was $20,295,790.80, a decrease of over $2,000,000.

Attorney General Otto Kerner has announced that he will cut the number of inheritance tax districts in the state from 39 to about 25, with a corresponding reduction in his staff of inheritance tax attorneys. He has estimated the change will save from $21,000 to $25,000 annually. Each attorney will be given a greater area to cover.

Upon the death of Calvin Coolidge, president of the United States from 1923 to 1929, former Gov. Louis L. Emerson sent the following message to Mrs. Coolidge: "The nation has suffered an irreparable loss in the death of your illustrious husband. His untimely passing is more than a national tragedy. The entire world had implicit confidence in his intellectual ability and his courageous leadership. His wise counsel will be sorely missed in the days of reconstruction that are ahead of us. On behalf of the state of Illinois may I extend to you the sincere condolences of our citizens and my own heartfelt sympathy. May God comfort and sustain you."

While Gov.-Elect Henry Horner has not openly expressed his views, there is nothing on the surface to indicate that he favors a suggested plan to abandon the annual state fair for a period of two years in the interest of economy. If there is a contest on the future life of the fair, it will come when the appropriation for the state department of agriculture, providing for the show, is considered in committee or on the floor. Contracts for the state fair of 1933 have been let and the new governor was consulted some time ago before the national swine show and a national cattle show were made a part of the agricultural program. Governor Horner, however, has indicated that he expects the state fair appropriations to be held down.

A drivers' license bill has been offered in the senate by Senator Edward P. O'Grady, Chicago. It requires drivers of automobiles to secure licenses, which cost 25 cents for three years. The bill, which would become operative September 30, 1933, will be considered by the committee on judiciary.

Although the number of persons in the state institutions has increased from 36,000 in 1929 to more than 45,000 at the present time, Director Rodney H. Brandon of the department of public welfare has announced that the per capita cost for caring for them has been cut from $348.92 in 1929 to less than $300, or about $2,250,000 a year.

Because of the large number of bills on the subject of economy coming before the general assembly and assurance that the total will be increased by reports of state commissions, it is probable that the entire subject will be considered by a special committee of the house and senate. Such a committee would take charge of all bills, work them into a program and present it to the legislature.

The coal industry of Illinois provided 104 days of employment for an average of 38,538 men in 1932, the state department of mines and minerals has announced. The December coal report, compiled from schedules furnished by the operators of 147 shipping mines that worked during the month, showed that the output for the year was 31,452,874 tons. In 1931 production was 43,973,058 tons. The average output for the past ten years was 53,404,899, or about 25,000,000 tons more than the production for 1932.

The elementary schools of Harvey, closed December 23 because of lack of funds, will be reopened on January 30. The reopening is made possible by the sale of tax anticipation warrants by a citizens' committee.

A pledge to give special attention to the liquidation of closed banks to conserve their assets for the benefit and protection of depositors and stockholders has been made in a statement by Edward J. Barrett, the new auditor of public accounts. Mr. Barrett has directed all receivers of closed banks to stop paying expenses except dividends to depositors until further notice, as he is studying expenditures with a view to placing certain economies in effect. The notice applies to all expenditures, including receivers' salaries.

I. The Divine Servant Ministering by the Sea (vv. 7-12).

1. Why he withdrew (v. 6). It was because of the murderous plotting of the Pharisees against his life. Their opposition began when Jesus claimed to have power on earth to forgive sins (2:10); grew in intensity when he mingled with publicans and sinners (2:16); was fanned into a violent flame when he set at naught their false interpretations of the Sabbath law (2:23-28).

2. To whom he ministered (vv. 7, 8). It was to a great multitude representing a wide stretch of territory.

3. The results (vv. 9-12).

a. The disciples prepared a small ship (v. 9). So great was the pressure of the thronging multitudes that he commanded the disciples to provide the ship so that he might be saved from them.

b. Unclean spirits fell down before him (vv. 11, 12). They not only bowed before him, but confessed him as the very Son of God. This testimony he refused, doubtless for two reasons:

(1) The time was not ripe to proclaim him publicly as the Son of God.

(2) They were not the beings to make him known. Jesus consistently refused the testimony of those who were not in moral accord with him.

II. The Divine Servant Calling Associates (vv. 13-19).

In this way he made provision for the carrying forward of his work after he was gone. Before choosing the twelve he spent a whole night in prayer (v. 13), (cf. Luke 6:12). From among his disciples he chose twelve whom he ordained for a twofold purpose:

1. "That they might be with him" (v. 14). Fellowship with the Lord is not only the highest privilege of the disciples, but it is an indispensable qualification for witnessing. It is needful to be with him to catch his spirit.

2. "That he might send them forth to preach" (v. 14). To proclaim the good news of salvation was the supreme mission of the disciples. Concerning those who were to be the messengers of Jesus Christ, note:

a. Twelve were ordained (v. 14).

This was the beginning of the process by which the Triune God was to make manifest his grace to the whole world. The number twelve is the product of the heavenly three and the earthly four, thus indicating the purpose of the Triune God to reveal himself unto the four quarters of the earth.

b. Their characteristics (vv. 17-19).

(1) They were from the middle ranks of society, the common walks of life.

(2) Men of average ability. Christ did not go to the schools for his apostles and yet he chose men of mental grasp and efficiency.

(3) Men of diverse temperamental gifts. The grouping of the apostles shows men of impulse and leadership, of the reflective and inquisitive type, and men of practical business abilities.

III. The Servant's Increasing Difficulties (vv. 20-35).

1. The suspicion of his friends (vv. 20, 21). The needy people pressed upon him so that he had no time to eat. When his friends saw his zeal eating him up, they suspected that he was losing his mind.

2. The violent opposition (v. 22-30). Added to the embarrassment of the suspicion of his friends, the Lord now had to face the sneers of the scribes.

3. Visited by his mother and brothers (vv. 31-35). We are left to conjecture as to the motive to this visit. Perhaps they likewise suspected his mental balance. It may be that they desired to take him home and nurse him back to normalcy.

First Germans to Settle in America

The first permanent German settlement in America was that fostered by William Penn at Germantown, founded in 1683. Francis Daniel Pastorius, a leader of the movement of German Protestants to America, took ship in advance of those he had induced to migrate, and landed at Philadelphia August 20, 1683. On October 6, 1683, the

FROM THE BEGINNING

Jim Stuart, fur trader, with his headman, Omar, rescues Aurore LeBlond, daughter of Stuart's rival in business, from an overturned canoe in the lake. She proves a charming companion, and Stuart is naturally attracted. Jim's superior, Andrew Christie, displeased at Stuart's trade showing, allows him, at his request, one year to "make good." Paradis bribes an Indian to ambush Jim and Omar. The attempt fails, and Jim takes the Indian to LeBlond. After hearing the story, LeBlond discharges Paradis. Jim and Aurore acknowledge their mutual love, though Aurore is returning to Winnipeg, and Jim has planned a canoe trip to make a personal appeal to the Indians, who have persistently refused to trade their furs with him. He finds that Paradis has enlisted their superstition to discourage them from trading with Stuart. Paradis' men ambush Jim and Omar again, but they are not harmed. Esau, half-breed partisan of Stuart, leaves on a journey which they hope will result in the overthrow of "Jingwak," Indian "medicine man" in the pay of Paradis. Camping for the night, the trader and Omar roll their blankets in the shape of men sleeping beside the fire, and hide nearby. Indians attempt to knife the men supposedly in the blankets. Jim and his friend attack and kill them. Jim successfully treats the infected arm of Jinaw's squaw, thereby gaining a friend. They set out to find their ally, Esau. On his way down the river Esau frustrates attempts to stop or kill him. Cornered by enemies, the veteran canoe man successfully runs the Windigo rapids, a feat believed to be impossible.

"How did he do it?" cried Jim, elated with the good news. "Now where are Paradis and Jingwak?"

"Paradis returned and the families of four of those who went with him are asking for their sons. But he will not speak."

"But Jingwak, what does he say? Is he afraid of this medicine man who ran the rapids to reach him?"

"He tells them that his magic will destroy the stranger."

"Did you see your son?"

"Yes. He said that Paradis and two others saw this shaman drive two men with their canoe into the rapids, but Paradis has closed their lips. Two more, who hunted for the white trader on the lake, have not returned."

"Umh!" Omar grunted. "He weel wait long tam for dem."

Far into the night the three discussed the situation. Omar wished to go in search of Esau at once, but Jinaw objected.

"There is now fear in the camp of Paradis. The young men are worried about this strange shaman from the west. Let me go again to the fishing camps and talk to the people. The time is not yet right for you to show yourselves to the Ojibwas."

"But we must find Esau. He may needs us," urged Jim.

"I will find him and return in two sleeps to this place," said the old man, as he stepped into his canoe.

Chafing under the lack of action imposed upon them by the old Indian, Jim and Omar spent two more days in hiding.

On the second night Jinaw returned, and the news he brought quickened the blood in the veins of the two who listened. Jinaw told them that some of the older Indians had demanded that Jingwak prove his superiority over the stranger whose magic canoe had been seen on the lake. And so, word had gone out to the people of the Sturgeon lakes that the shaman, Jingwak, would erect his medicine lodge at the Great Medicine Stone, and prove his magic stronger than that of the sorcerer who had come among them only to hide.

"Esau's smoked him out! Good old Esau! Here's his chance!" cried Jim. "But what under heaven is he going to do, Omar?"

"We go and see," grunted the half-breed.

CHAPTER IX

For two days canoes from the four winds had passed the hiding place of Jim and Omar, on their way to the medicine making beside the mammoth boulder, known as the Great Medicine Stone.

As he sat watching the moving canoes through his binoculars, Jim wondered how, in the face of the odds which confronted him, the little old man hoped to outwit the sorcerer. What could he contrive before these gaping red men to make the fakir, Jingwak, a laughing stock in the eyes of his own people?

And in Omar Jim found no comfort.

"Eef Esau do not mak' de beeg medicine, we nevaire see home."

Further than that Omar would not go. "What is he holding so closely behind those stiff lips of his?" Jim ruminated. "He certainly has some idea about what Esau will do."

When the twilight died and the lake lay muffled in shadow, Jim and Omar slipped their canoe into the water and started for the island. A few hours, now, would tell the tale. Jim wondered if this was the end. In the mad hope of saving Sunset House, he had put aside his love for the girl who had begged him to stay. And now, on the desperate chance of Esau winning over the Indians by some sleight of hand, some artifice of the conjuror, learned from his father, they were giving Paradis odds of ten to one in a knife fight in the dark.

At last, off the shore where the expectant Ojibwas were gathered before the fire, the peterboro drifted in the murk. A short distance from the fire, dimly outlined in the shadows at the foot of the Medicine Stone, stood a small cylindrical tipi of caribou hide, ornamented with the grotesque shapes of serpents and animals. It was the medicine lodge of Jingwak.

"We wait for heem to mak' de beeg howl, den we go ashore below here," whispered Omar.

"Can you make out Paradis?" replied Jim.

"Paradees keep een de dark until he see how de magic of Jingwak work. Eef eet work, we have to fight for Esau."

Presently, the rattle of shells, mingled with the beat of the medicine drum, drifted from the tent. The low hum of the squatted audience died. The sorcerer had begun his invocation of the spirits.

At the fire swart faces turned gray with dread.

Suddenly, out of the hush, lifted a voice as from the grave. A spirit was speaking.

"The stranger from the land where the sun sleeps is no shaman. He came from the trader at the House of the Setting Sun, the home of Devils."

"Where is this conjuror," asked the sepulchral voice, "who tells the Ojibwas his magic is stronger than that of Jingwak, my brother? He is not here! He fears the wrath of Jingwak, the great shaman."

Jim's muscles stiffened. The moment had come. It was time to strike—but where was Esau?

"He's not here!" whispered Jim. "We'd better work toward the canoe."

But the man at his side, whose fingers clamped on the horn handle of a knife as he peered at the medicine lodge, stood motionless.

"The stranger has the heart of a rabbit. His mouth is full of lies. He hides from the magic of Jingwak!"

With a glance at the spellbound Indians, Jim took Omar's arm. "Come on! They'll go crazy in a minute! We'll be cut off from the canoe!"

Then the iron fingers of Omar dug into Jim's arm as he muttered, "Look!"

Beside the medicine lodge stood an apparition. From the nodding head, above a chalk-white mask with eye holes and a grinning mouth, rose the antlers of a caribou. On the skin-clad body writhed painted snakes. At the sash hung the medicine bag and shell rattle of a conjuror.

A suppressed "Ah!" swept the startled Ojibwas. "The shaman! The shaman!"

There was a pause. Wide eyed, the electrified Indians waited for the funeral voice from the mask.

"I have come, oh Jingwak! Otchig, the shaman from God's lake who fears not your magic, is here!"

But from the tipi of Jingwak came no sound.

"Come forth, oh magician with the split tongue! Otchig, the shaman from God's lake, laughs at your medicine!"

Still the lodge of Jingwak gave no answer.

From the squatted Ojibwas rose murmurs of surprise. Why did not Jingwak speak?

Suddenly, in the gloom across the fire, sounded heated words. Jim's eyes turned from the horned shape by the medicine lodge. An inflamed face, lit by the glow, faded into the darkness. It was Paradis.

"Does Jingwak, the friend of the trader, Paradis, fear the magic of Otchig that he hides his face?"

Low groans greeted the strange behavior of the mute conjuror in the tent.

"He's afraid to come out!" whispered Jim, excitedly. "What's Esau done to him?"

The half-breed's answer was a fierce squeeze of the arm.

Shortly, above the murmuring of the Indians lifted the voice of Jinaw, the Rattlesnake: "The strange shaman has put a spell upon Jingwak!"

There was a movement in the medicine lodge. The door flap was thrust aside and the conjuror crawled slowly out. As he rose, the rat-like eyes in the painted face, avoiding the mask of Otchig, shifted furtively from side to side.

"He's quit! Esau's got him! We'd better work around behind to hold 'em off, if they rush!" breathed Jim.

"No, de Indian believe Esau—wait! I tak' care of Paradees!"

"Look, men of the Sturgeon, on the great Wabeno!" jeered the voice from the chalk-white mask, as Jingwak's hunted eyes fell before the rows of fire-lit faces. "His friend, the spirit, asks me for magic! Behold the medicine of Otchig!"

With an ear-torturing scream, he stiffened his arms and sliced the air, downward, to his side.

"Without blood I have taken his ears!" announced the voice from the mask. "Go to him and behold the magic of Otchig!"

The desperate Jingwak turned to escape in the blackness of the spruce, but Jinaw and two Ojibwas were on him and dragged the panic-stricken sorcerer back to the fire. Pushing aside the long hair which hung to his shoulders, the Rattlesnake exposed the sides of Jingwak's head to the view of the astonished Ojibwas.

The ears had been removed close to the skull!

For a hushed interval the awed Ojibwas gaped in wonder at this proof of Otchig's magic. Then with a roar there was a rush for the impostor who had deceived them with his boasting. But the terrified Jingwak wrenched free of the arms that held him and disappeared in the blackness.

At the same time Jim and Omar cut back to the shore to head off Paradis, but he had foreseen defeat and his canoe had lost itself in the shadows. Furious at having the man who had hunted them slip through their fingers, Jim and Omar returned to the fire.

Then Jinaw shouted for silence, while the triumphant Esau gathered the fruits of his victory. The last doubter was convinced. He had won!

Eagerly the mercurial red men waited while the great shaman, Otchig, removed his costume. Then Esau addressed them. Going back to God's lake, he told of the respect for fair dealing in which the Indians had held the elder Stuart and his son.

The devil story of Jingwak, the liar, which had kept the hunters from the post, was the invention of Paradis, to hold the fur trade. Jingwak and the Frenchman they would never see again. Esau told them, if the people wished it, he would come each summer and make medicine at the great stone.

And soon in the little Moon of the Spirit, when the trails were broken for sledding, he would bring flour and trade-goods for those who found the journey too long to the House of the Sunset.

In turn Jim and Omar spoke to the hunters, warning them that Paradis was now an outlaw, and inviting them to Sunset House. Then shaking the hand of the Indians, some of whom Stuart had reason to believe had fought him and Omar on the portage trail, Jim and his men headed back to camp.

As his paddle tore the water, he laughed in his relief and joy: "We've won! We've won! Aurore! D'you hear, down there in the city? I'm coming back to you, girl; I've won!"

"You foxy old devil! You deserve the Victoria cross!"

For the twentieth time Jim hugged the lean frame of the grinning Esau, as they stood at their camp-fire.

"You knew before we left the post that Jingwak was this Makwa, without ears, you had run out of Wolf river years ago. But how in thunder did you find it out; you never saw him?"

"W'en I hear dat Jingwak and Paradees scare de hunter from Sunset House wid devil story, I remember dat ees de same talk dis Makwa mak' at de Wolf riviere. Den some Indian tell me dat Jingwak wear hees hair ver' long. Makwa would do dat to hide de ear he lose, ah-hah! W'en de people, here, tell me w'at he look lak—den I know he ees Makwa."

"And you played him like a master! Wait till the story reaches Pipestone. I guess Andrew Christie's eyes'll open when he sees the fur you'll get for us by this night's work." And the grateful Jim again hugged the old man, whose smoke-tanned face, like old leather, beamed with his content.

"Otchig, the strange shaman from the west!" chuckled Jim. "You clever rascal! When Jingwak saw that the man who took his ears at Wolf river had called his bluff, he hung to that lodge of his like a fox to his hole! Do you suppose he had guessed before this who you were?"

"Mebbe so. Jinaw say dat Paradees look hard for me before eet grow dark."

Whole Country May Be Put Under Martial Law

Martial law is arbitrary government in cases where the safety of the state or nation is menaced. It is really not law at all and has no relation to military law, which is an established code for the regulation of military forces. Martial law is the law of military necessity in the actual presence of war and is justified only when, because of actual invasion or civil war, the courts are closed and it is impossible to administer justice according to law. The Supreme Court of the United States has held that a state may proclaim martial law when the safety of the state demands it. It is presumed that the Constitution, by implication,

Capturing Oil Cushers

"Wild" oil wells are capped in a number of different ways, depending upon conditions at the casing head when the wells blow out. In general, the operation consists in attaching a gate valve to the casing head and closing the valve after the connection has been made. Connections which provide a number of flow lines are then made to flow the oil from the wells. The complete assembly of well head connections is known as the "Christmas tree," because of the various branch connections off of it to the main header above the large flow control valve.

I know he do dis, so I land on oder side an' cross de island tru de bush."

"I certainly thought we'd have to fight, Esau. Why didn't you tell me about this Jingwak? Did you cut off his ears?"

"No, wan good frien' of me, at de Wolf riviere—he do that," replied the old man, and he met Jim's incredulous grin with the guileless look of a child.

"And you ran those rapids?"

Esau told of his meeting with Paradis and his men which had forced him into the Rapids of the Windigo.

"How you got through the lord only knows! And you did it for me!"

The eyes of the old man were bright with emotion. "For you and your fader. I tell heem w'en he goin' to die, not worry. I tak' care Jeem."

"And you have—you and Omar! Bless your old bones!"

"Umh!" grunted Omar bitterly. "But I let dat Paradees get away!"

In the morning the peterboro from Sunset House started on the long trail south. Up the great lake on the way to the inlet traveled the canoe. An interval of mellow days—the early Indian summer of the far north—would companion it up the Sturgeon to the Pipestone lakes.

At the foot of the big rapids of the Sturgeon, Jim looked for, and found, the footprints of Smoke. The absence of rain, and the dropping of the river, had left the last traces of the friend he had lost as clear cut as on the day after the fight on the portage.

"Good-by, Smoke!" said Jim, gazing through eyes blurred by many a poignant memory at the footprints of the dog he had fed from puppyhood. "Jim never had a better friend than you. All you had you gave him, and now he's going home without his dog. Good-by, Smoke!"

CHAPTER X

Hard as they had raced the coming winter south through the Pipestone lakes, long since deserted by the Indians, the men from Sunset House found that the moccasin telegraph had been even more swift. For one day, as they followed the inlet of the last of the chain, they overtook a canoe. Anxious to speed the news of Jingwak's downfall, Omar ran the peterboro alongside the traveling birchbark. At his mention of the defeat of the sorcerer and his friend Paradis, the men in the boat nodded in affirmation.

"Otchig, the great shaman from God's lake took his ears," said the older Indian. "Jingwak is a liar. He has left the country."

"Otchig now lives at the Lake of the Sand Beaches," announced Omar. "Do the Ojibwas believe he lives with devils?"

The Indian shook his head. "It was the lie of Jingwak and Paradis, the trader. In the Little Moon of the Spirit I and my sons will journey to the House of the Sunset with our furs."

When the peterboro had passed from earshot of the other craft, Omar asked his friends: "How dey hear dat so soon?"

"A canoe must have started for the Pipestones that night. Why didn't you tell them that Esau was the great shaman, Otchig?" demanded Jim.

Omar frowned at the lack of astuteness in his chief. "Dey breeng dat fur to us Creemas to have a look at de great shaman. I not tell dem dey look at heem now, w'en de got no skin to trade."

"Omar, you're a statesman! You're wasted in the bush; you ought to be in Ottawa," insisted Jim, while Esau nodded in approval.

Then, between the Pipestones and home, the first battalions of the geese, fleeing the freezing winds, filled the nights with their clamor, and hard on their heels came the snow. Each morning breaking a path with their poles through the heavier film of ice of the deadwaters, riding the thinner sheets with a pounding bow, the voyagers raced the winter south.

At last, one windy October day, when swirls of fine snow beat round the buildings of Sunset House, and the black lake churned into wind-driven foam, three white shapes, driving paddles sheathed with ice, brought the canoe in to the beach.

For Sunday Night Supper, or Lunch

Well to Keep Supply of Canned Delicacies on Shelves.

Whether you keep house seriously or "kitchenettily," as some put it, you are almost certain to keep a supply of canned crab meat, tuna fish, salmon and lobster meat on hand. They are called on then for main dishes and salad, for lunch and for Sunday night supper and for canapes and for entrees—if you go in for formal dinners.

Of these four foods, lobster perhaps has the more distinct flavor. A very good brand of canned lobster must be selected on this account. Packs of lobster vary more than packs of the other fish unless it is the crab meat, which is of two distinctly different kinds. The Japanese crab meat comes in larger pieces, keeps its natural flavor, and is packed in such quantities that it is used largely. It is particularly good for salad whenever large pieces are desirable. Personally, a household authority says, I like both lobster and crab left in fairly large pieces when a salad is prepared. At least a third as much celery as fish is used for these salads, and mayonnaise is mixed with them. Tiny capers or minced green olives improve these salads. Tuna may be used the same way. When salmon is used as a salad, it is better left in larger pieces—as it comes from the can. Plenty of mayonnaise should be arranged, with hard-cooked eggs—cut into lengthwise eighths—around the salmon. Eggs are, of course, often used to garnish the other fish salads. Any one of these fish may be put into an aspic jelly with celery and sliced stuffed olives. A ring of salad of this sort may be served with cucumbers cut into dices and mixed with mayonnaise or with a mixed vegetable salad dressed in the same way.

For canapes, the fish is usually finely minced and well seasoned before it is spread on rounds of toast or fried bread. Sometimes the salad mentioned above is molded in tiny molds not more than one inch in diameter. When these are turned out of the mold they are put on toothpicks and eaten with canapes, as an appetizer.

For a creamed dish, or for its richer relation the Newburg, lobster and crab are the favorites. The creamed fish is served on toast in patty cases, or is put in ramekins or in a large baking dish, covered with crumbs and browned in a hot oven. When high seasonings and pimientos and green peppers are added to a creamed dish it is sometimes known as "devil's." Any of these fish make delicious timbales and souffles. One is as good as the other. Sometimes a Hollandaise or a Tartar sauce is served with these hot dishes.

One other delicious use for these sea foods should be mentioned. They make such delicious cream soups as "bisques," as they are called. Of course, they are a little heavy for dinner, but I know of one household where this is a specialty of the hostess and where guests are always hopeful of having a meal begin with her famous lobster bisque.

In either of the recipes given, of product can be used to better advantage, but we are quite likely to find good use for them often in their canned form.

Salmon Timbales.

2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons flour
1 cup milk
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon chopped parsley
¼ teaspoon onion juice
¼ teaspoon white pepper
2 slices pimiento
½ cup ripe olives, minced
1 cup flaked salmon
1 cup bread crumbs
1 tablespoon butter

Heat two tablespoons butter and add the flour, gradually add milk and stir until it thickens. Add salt, parsley, onion juice, pepper, olives, pimientos and salmon to mixture. Pour into buttered ramekins, cover with crumbs over which one tablespoon of melted butter has been poured. Place ramekins in a pan of hot water and bake in a hot oven (450 degrees Fahrenheit) until the crumbs have browned. Garnish with parsley. This recipe may be doubled for a luncheon dish.

Spinach Ring Filled With Lobster and Crab.

3 cups cooked or canned spinach
1 teaspoon grated onion
1 tablespoon butter
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon black pepper
¼ teaspoon paprika
2 eggs
2 cups cream sauce
½ cup fine bread crumbs
1 cup flaked lobster meat
1 cup flaked crab meat

Chop spinach fine and add grated onion, which has been browned in butter. Season with salt, black pepper, paprika and add the well-beaten egg yolks. Mix the spinach with one and one-half cups of cream sauce and fold in the well-beaten egg whites. Place in a buttered ring mold and dust with bread crumbs. Place in a pan of hot water and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees Fahrenheit) for twenty minutes. Loosen the spinach by pressing from the side of the mold with a knife, turn out on a hot platter and fill the center with lobster meat and crab meat heated with rest of white sauce. Garnish with strips of pimiento or slices of lemon or hard-cooked egg.

City Typical of East

Northern Africa is the gateway to the Orient. Nowhere else has the East with its fascinating Moslem art and customs advanced so far west as in Tripoli, Tunis, Algeria and Morocco. A tourist can leave Paris at night by train for Marseilles and arrive 36 hours later at Algiers, amidst mosques and sparkling white round-domed houses. The visions of Arabian nights become reality for anyone visiting northern Africa. For not only have old Islamic towns remained intact there but the life and habits of the Mahometan population have not changed during the centuries, despite the French conquest.

Wisdom From Ruskin

To yield reverence to another, to hold ourselves and our lives at his disposal, is not slavery; often it is the noblest state in which a man can live in this world.—Ruskin.

MOKENA

Barney Hostert underwent an operation in the Speedway hospital, Chicago the past week. He is improving nicely.

Mrs. A. C. Hall who is a patient in the Michael Reese hospital in Chicago, is improving slowly.

Alice and Jack Horras, and Ada and Adeline Semmler visited in Blue Island Sunday afternoon with the former uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Patrick McGee. They also attended a movie show and saw "Rock-a-Bye."

Mrs. Arthur Florence who has been visiting with her mother, Mrs. Shevlin and other Mokena relatives, has returned to her home in Washington, D. C.

The village board meets next Tuesday night.

The 500 Club was entertained on Wednesday in the home of Mrs. Fred Warning in Frankfort.

IN MEMORIAM

GRATER FLORENCE—In everlasting memory of my dear wife, Mrs. Florence Grater, who passed away one year ago, Feb. 7, 1932.

Gone is the face I loved so dear, Silent is the voice I loved to hear, Too far away for sight or speech, But not too far for thought to reach.

SCHOOL NEWS

To-night the Mokena gymnasium Orland Park brings their grade school and their high school teams for two games. The high school game is an important one in the Junior Six Conference, for, if Orland Park defeats Mokena, Crete will be in sole possession of first place, while, if Mokena defeats Orland Park, Mokena and Crete will be tied for first place with one defeat each. The grade school game will begin at 7:30 p. m.

Probable Line-ups: Orland Park H. S. Mokena H. S. Nicolai F McGovney Heim F Knakmuhs Steinmetz C Walsh Wymmer G Cappel, W. Gum G Lauffer, G. On February 9, 10 and 11, the junior six tournament including Orland Park, Monee, Manhattan, Crete, Beecher, and Mokena, will be held at the Mokena gymnasium. A silver trophy cup will be awarded the winner of the trophy, while a statuette will be awarded the second place winner. There will be two games each night.

Friday evening Mokena won two games from Monee, the grades winning in an overtime 17-14 and the high school, 40-13. The grade game was the most interesting from the spectators' standpoint. At the end of the regulation game the score stood at 14-14. In the three minute overtime period Jungels of the victors tossed a field goal and a charity throw to put Mokena three points in the lead. Monee was unable to count a point in the overtime when their many shots bounced off the basket instead of in the basket. Stender and Vollrath with four points each were outstanding for the losers. Hellmuth played a good defensive game for the victors.

Score by quarters: Monee 4 6 8 14 14 Mokena 2 3 5 14 17

In the high school game Wilke of Monee with four points and Walsh of Mokena with nine points were high scorers on their respective teams.

Score by quarters: Monee 4 7 10 13 Mokena 17 18 33 40

Saturday evening at Joliet the Joliet high school "B" team scored an easy 32-18 victory over the Mokena high school quintet. Tibble of the victors with 11 points and McGovney of the losers with 10 points led the scoring of the evening.

Score by quarters: Joliet 6 14 29 32 Mokena 1 5 11 18

TELEPHONES OF WORLD MAKE ENORMOUS TOTAL

Nearly All of Them Are in Reach of This Country

The total number of telephones in the world on January 1, 1931, the last date for which comparable figures are available, was 35,336,467, according to figures furnished by the American Telephone and Telegraph Company. The share of the United States was 20,201,576, and the total for all countries in North America was 21,836,301. Europe contributed 10,589,222, Asia 1,249,540, Oceania 794,483, South America 619,825, and Africa 247,691. Of all these telephones, about 91 per cent were within reach of any Bell System telephone.

Varied Development in Europe

Of the countries of Europe, Germany has the greatest number of telephones, with Great Britain and Northern Ireland second and France third. Germany's per cent of the total world telephones is 9.19; this country ranks next to the United States in its share of existing telephones.

Great Britain and Northern Ireland have a percentage of 5.65, and France 3.26. Next comes Sweden with 1.52 per cent, Italy with 1.08 per cent, Russia with 1.07 per cent, and Denmark with 1.00 per cent.

The three countries in Europe which have the least telephone development, from the standpoint of world percentages, are Bulgaria, Greece, and the Irish Free State. From the standpoint of telephones per 100 population, however, the countries in Europe having the smallest development are Russia, Greece, Roumania and Bulgaria. On the same basis, the countries making the best record are Denmark, Sweden and Switzerland.

Many Telephones in Antipodes

In South America, the Argentine Republic leads, both in its percentage of world telephones and its telephone development per 100 population. Brazil ranks second in total telephones. In Africa the Union of South Africa has the most telephones, and in Asia, Japan has a commanding lead over all other countries. In Oceania, New Zealand has more telephones per 100 population than any European country, and Australia is exceeded in this respect only by Denmark and Sweden.

The number of telephones per 100 population in the United States was 16.4 per one hundred persons. Canada had a development of 14.0, and in third place was New Zealand with 10.2 telephones per 100 population.

TRUCK DRIVERS WIN FLEET SAFETY AWARD

A silver plaque has been presented to the drivers of the truck fleet of the Illinois Bell Telephone Company by a safety division of the Association of Commerce. It was given as a prize for taking first place in the inter-fleet drivers' safety contest in Illinois. This group of drivers has a record of 12,595 truck days without accident which was compiled in the three and a half years that the contest has been conducted.

This lamp gives the
everyone is talking about

It's a simple thing but what a difference it makes in your living room lighting! Hidden under the shade of this new lamp is a reflector that focuses indirect light up to the ceiling and diffuses it evenly over the whole room. It's the bright-but-soft, flattering kind of light you need for entertaining. Because there is no glare, not a single heavy shadow, it's especially fine for bridge games. And there is a separate switch that turns on direct light for reading.

Pictured right is the outstanding reflector lamp value we know of. Its three-candle base is beautifully finished in gold or in bronze. Its pleated silk Celanese shade comes in gold, tan, rose or green, edged in braid to match. See it today at your Public Service Store. Only

PUBLIC SERVICE COMPANY OF NORTHERN ILLINOIS

Several outstanding facts about this Company should be well understood: (1) It is purely an operating company and is not owned or controlled by any other company. (2) The majority of its stockholders live right here—it is "home owned". (3) All of its officers and employees live here. (4) Its future is irrevocably dependent upon the growth and prosperity of northern Illinois.

Mokena Man Knows
Decendents of Old
Deed Makers

The following interesting story appeared in the Highland Democrat, Peekskill, New York of the issue of January 23, 1933. Charles Sylvester of Mokena is a regular subscriber of this paper which is published in his old home town. Mr. Sylvester personally knows members of the Van Cortland and Verplanck families mentioned in the article which reads as follows:

While copying deeds in the County Registers office by the unemployed so that a new tax map of Croton-on-Hudson might be drawn the discovery was made of the old deed by which Stephanus Van Cortland secured his tract of land from the Indians which in a way constituted the now boundaries of this town.

The grant was approved by the English crown on the condition that he deliver to "His Majesty" exactly "two bushels of good merchantable Winter wheat" each year.

Portions of the deed follow: "To All Christian People to Whom This Present Writing Shall Come, Pewemind, Oskewans, Turhan, Quierawight, Siechams, Tsighres and Prackfies, all Indians, true and rightful owners and proprietors of the land herein and after mentioned as for themselves and the rest of their relations, send Greeting.

"Know Yee, that for and in consideration of the sum of Twelft Pounds in wampum and several other merchandizes as by a schedull hereunto annexed, the said Indians in hand paid before the, ensembling and delivery hereof, they the said Indians have granted bargained and sold aliene enfeoffed and confirmed and by these presents doe fully clearly and absolutely grant, bargain sell aliene enfeoff and confirm unto, Stephanus Van Cortland of the City of New York, Marshant, his heirs or assigns forever, All that a certain tract or parcle of land situate lying and being on the east side of Hudson's River, at the entering of the highland just over against a place called Haverstroo.

"Beginning on the south side of a creeke called Tommissis and from thence easterly in the woods to the head of a creeke called Kewigha-hag and soe alonge saide creeke northerly to Hudson's River and then westerly to the utmost poynt of said tract of land and from thence southerly alonge said Hudson's River to the aforesaid creeke Tamoessis which said tract or parcell of land is knowne by the Indians by names Appamoghough and Beahagh including all the lands soile meadows and woods within the bounds and limits aforesaid Together with all and singular the trees timber, under woods, swamps, moores, marshes, meadow rivolettes, streams, creeks, waters, lakes, pooles, ponds, fishing, hunting, fowleing and whatsoever els to the said tract or parcell of land within the bounds and limitts of aforesaid is belonging or in anywise appertaining without and reservations whatsoever."

The document is then signed by the marks of the seven Indians and witnessed by Francis Rombolett and Givlain Verplanck. The signatures are followed by "A Schedall or List of Goods Paid by Stphanus Van Cort land for the land in this deed expressed (viz)." The full list follows:

"Eight Gunns, Nine Blanccoats, Five Coats, Fourteene fatham of Dusfields, Fourteene Ketels, Fourty fathom of Black wampum, Eighty fathom of White wampum, Two ankers of Rum, Five half, fatts of Stronge beer, Twelve shirts, Fluffy pound of powder, Thirty barres of Howes, Fourteene Knives, A Smale Coat, Six fatham stroudwater cloth, Six paire of stockings, Six Eastern Juggs, Six Tobacco Boxes."

ORLAND PARK

BROADCASTING WEEKLY
NEWS OVER STATION O.P.A.C.

We are sorry to lose two pupils from our school, George and Virginia Martini who have moved to Chicago. Our bluebirds are reading in their fourth primer. Carl Jarrell has returned to school again after a few weeks absence caused by a broken leg. Buddy Cox entertained his cousin Donald Cox over the week end. Joe Heim has been home ill.

Donald Uthe has returned to school again. The spelling contest was won by the eighth grade with an average of 99 1-6 per cent.

Thirty desk tops are being planed down to a new surface. Initials carved into the desks, perhaps five, ten or twenty years ago are to be reminders of Whittier's poem of the little red school on the hill. Such initials as M. S., P. H., B. N., P. O., F. S., M. Y., H. M., C. R., F. C., J. K., Slim Jim, L. T., L. V. A., F. U., M. C., E. R., and lot of other lettering. The present generation of pupils could cipher names of many leading citizens now living in Orland. The seats are to have a fresh coat of stain and varnish and really a fresh start in life.

The spelling contestants are drilling on hard words. They are: Alice Nicolai, Violet Jacobson, Cyril Kay, Martin Steinhagen, Sherman Knox, Marvin Schmaedeke, Clarence Creer, and Lucille Reish.

Miss McMahon visited our school Monday afternoon. She praised the work being done on the desks by the boys in the manual training class. Signing off until next week.

Your Announcer,

LUCILLE REISH

Auctioneer Edward Schmaedeke had a very good auction sale on Saturday near the Indiana line. Fairly good prices as prices go now days, were realized. A large crowd attended the sale.

Mr. Schmaedeke has a number of sales booked for the next few weeks. Mrs. Wade Thomas and sister, Miss Neff have decided not to make their future home in Chicago and expect to stay in the Thomas home in Orland Park.

Mayor Wm. Kollman was on the sick list the forepart of the week.

The dance and card party held by the Legion Post in the Palos Club House Saturday night was quite well attended and a neat little sum was cleared for the Post. All present had a good time.

The Orland Park Legion Post held a special meeting at their headquarters Tuesday night.

The Martini family have moved to Chicago.

The fire department will hold their monthly meeting next Monday night.

Taxes Exceed

Value of Auto

The average motorist is compelled to pay $62 in taxes during the first year after he buys a new car, according to the Chicago Motor Club. At that rate of taxation it is possible, in many instances, for him to pay the government more than the value of the car itself.

"Illustrating to what extent tax imposing bodies may go," the club continues, "Alfred Reeves, vice president of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, shows in a recent article in MOTOR what the plight of the motorist is in the town of Decatur, Alabama. Read these figures and you will realize the importance of motorists being banded together for self protection.

"Here is what the average motorist pays on an average car. The Federal excise tax nicks him for $16.15, the government tax on tires costs him $2.65, oil costs him 80 cents and then Uncle Sam finishes with $6.10 for a gasoline tax. But the motorist still has too much money so a benign state government comes to his rescue with a six cent tax which nets $36.60, a state horsepower tax costing $18.75 and a personal tax which extracts $7.80. Now comes Lime-stone county with a three cent tax on gas and the end of the year finds our average motorist out of pocket $18.30 on that score. Decatur, not to be outdone by the county, the state and the government, steps forward with a slight tax of two cents to prove its good will and a matter of 12.20 is more or less painlessly yanked out of the bulging pocket-book of Mr. Average Car Owner.

"If you are good at mental addition, you have calculated that the total is $119.55, which is the correct answer. Also, there is another possibility of taxation which the motorist may or may not be forced to pay during the course of the year. Should he break some part a Federal tax will be charged for that piece of misfortune!"

The American Automobile Association has been waging a bitter warfare against ever mounting taxes and against diversion of motor taxes to other purposes than highway construction. In this campaign a leading part has been taken by the Chicago Motor Club.

Ind. Basketball

Tournaments

The Central States Amateur Independent Basketball association, with headquarters in Indianapolis, Ind., each year conducts a series of Amateur Independent Basketball tournaments throughout the middle states in order that a champion independent basketball team may be chosen in a championship way. The various states are divided into districts and the winners from the several districts go to the state tournament of their respective states.

This year, for the third time in 30 many years, one of these districts has been awarded to Peotone Vernon L. Plummer, superintendent of our local schools and a member of the advisory committee of the Central States association, has been named tournament manager for this district.

The Peotone District tournament will be held again in the Peotone High School gym on the nights of Feb. 6, 7, 8, 9 and 10. This tournament is sponsored locally by the Peotone Basketball association and the high school athletic department. The winners here will go to Pana, Ill., to the state tournament, the winner of which will be recognized as the Amateur Independent Basketball champion of Illinois. Numerous individual and team trophies will be awarded here to the district semi-finalists and finalists.

According to present arrangements there will be sixteen games in the Peotone District tournament: four on each of the first three nights, Feb. 6, 7, and 8, and two games on each of the last two nights, Feb. 9 and 10. Judging by the previous records of the teams entered this should be the best and fastest competition ever seen in Peotone and the public are being given the opportunity to purchase season tickets, which are good for five admissions and are transferable, at the small price of $1.00 for adults and 50c for children. These season tickets, as formerly are only to be sold in advance of the tournament and must be purchased prior to 4 p. m. Feb. 6. They are now offered for sale by numerous school children who are thereby earning tickets themselves and by members of the Peotone Basketball association. Single admissions will be 40c for adults and 20c for children at the first four sessions and 50c for adults and 25c for children at the final session.

The following teams will be seen in action in this district tournament: Crete Trinity, Mulderink Aces of Blue Island, Grant Park with two teams, Kankakee Presbyterians, Manteno C. O. F., Wilmington 5-Oaks with two teams, Curve Inn Wildcats with two teams, and the Builders from Peotone, White Cigars, Milwaukee Jaces, Standard Oil from Joliet, Dark Horse and Bradley Holy Name. The sponsors invite you, each and all, to purchase your season tickets early and attend every session.

The condition of Mrs. Edward Derr the daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. John Dingle who underwent a major operation in St. James hospital, Aurora, is reported favorable.

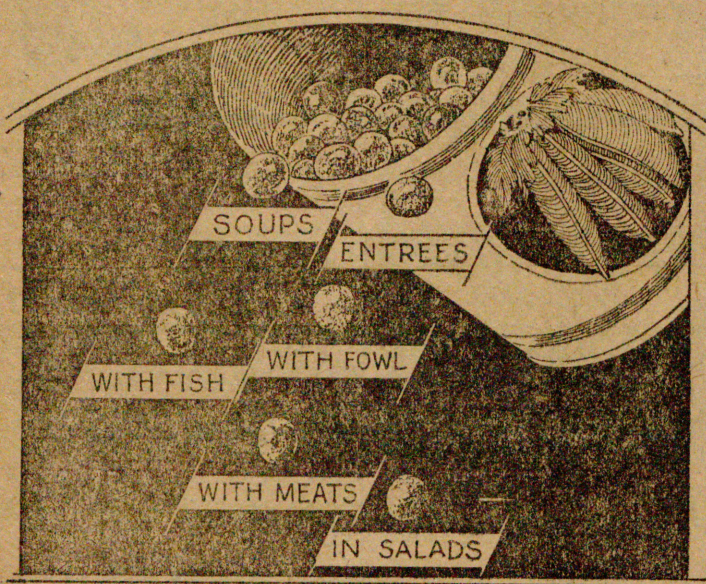

Mrs. Dorothy Osmus entertained a group of friends in her home Wednesday. A quilting bee was held after a covered dish luncheon had been served.

The W. E. S. Club was entertained in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Carlson Friday night. Prizes were awarded to Mrs. Norton Deal, Mrs. Albert Fitzer, Norton Deal and Albert Fitzer. At the close of games the hostess served refreshments.

The New Lenox Young People's League met Sunday night in the M. E. church auditorium. The leaders were: Marjorie Urch, Roland Fitzer and Edward Novak. Their topic was "Our Responsibility to World Brotherhood". The following officers were then elected for the next three months: President, Fred C. Francis, Jr., first vice-president, Everett Gullickson; second vice-president, Irma Strausberg, talent; third vice-president, Edward Pelkey, social service; fourth vice-president, Elizabeth Francis, social chairman; secretary and treasurer, Dorothy McCleary. Installation of officers will take place at the meeting next Sunday night. John Burlingame will act as installing officer.

Miss Elizabeth Francis spent the week end as a guest of her sister, Miss Helen Francis in Morris.

Persistent Peas

PEAS can persist practically all the way through the meal, and are equally good in almost any course. You can start a dinner, for instance, with this Cream of Carrot and Pea Soup: Make a white sauce of two tablespoons butter, one tablespoon flour and three cups milk. Press the contents of an 11-ounce can of peas through a sieve, reserving a few for garnishing. Add the pureed peas and the pea liquor to the white sauce. Add one-fourth cup carrot pulp, boiled and pressed through a sieve. Season to taste, and add the whole peas. Serves six.

Combine Two P's

Or, if you want your pea dish a little later in your dinner, try combining peas and pineapple in Pea Puff with Pineapple: Drain the peas from a No. 2 can and press them through a sieve. Make a thick white sauce of four tablespoons butter, four tablespoons flour and one cup milk, and add the pea pulp. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Add three well-beaten egg yolks, and fold in three stiffly-beaten egg whites. Pour into a buttered baking dish, and set in a pan of hot water. Bake in a moderate oven—350° to 375°—until set and a delicate brown—about twenty-five to thirty minutes. While baking, cook together until rich and thick two tablespoons butter and the contents of an 8-ounce can of crushed Hawaiian pineapple. Spread this over the baked puff, and serve at once. This makes eight to ten servings.

RICHES IN THE SEA

THERE is $28,000,000,000,000,000 worth of gold in the ocean, according to recent report made by the National Research Council—about $14,000,000 worth for every man, woman and child on earth.

Hearing this good news, a contributor to H. I. Phillips' column in the New York Sun writes: "So I gave the landlord a bathing suit and told him to jump in the ocean for the back rent."

Gold Galore

But actually, "What's In the Ocean" is a most amazing story, as recently told by Haden F. Taylor, former Chief Technologist of the United States Bureau of Fisheries. Almost every mineral is found in sea water, because rain falls on the earth, dissolving the minerals in the soil. Thence the rain flows into rivers, and rivers flow into the sea. The sun draws up the water, leaving the minerals behind. And this washing process, going on for countless ages, has robbed the land of its riches and deposited them in the great storehouse of the sea. In a body of sea water a mile square there might be more than six hundred million dollars worth of gold. No scientist has found means to extract these minerals profitably, so they remain in this storehouse—the bottom of the sea—which is a vast rolling plane, dark and lifeless, strewn with skeletons, volcanic dust, and meteorites.

Since we can't all get into deep-sea diving suits and dive down for our rightful share of this wealth, let's do the next best thing—eat fish which contain a wealth of iodine and also copper and iron, which are helpful in anemia cases.

Vitamins, too, are to be found in sea food. Did you ever wonder how vitamin D, the sunshine vitamin gets into codfish liver in such large quantities? According to Mr. Taylor the sun shines on tiny plants growing on the surface of sea water—plants so tiny that you can hardly see them. The sunshine creates this vitamin in these tiny plants and the codfish eat the plants and store up the vitamin in their livers.

Eat and Grow Rich

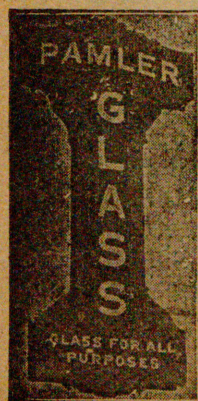

You will want to know plenty of delicious ways to serve fish, and since modern canning provides fish which retain their healthful minerals, we are suggesting tested recipes for serving them.

Salmon Cutlets with Egg Sauce: Heat salmon cutlets from a 15-ounce can by immersing the can in boiling water for fifteen to twenty minutes. Open, and remove the fish carefully, in one large piece if possible, to a hot platter.

Garnish with lemon slices and parsley. Serve with egg sauce made by chopping three hard-cooked eggs fine, adding three tablespoons melted butter, salt and pepper and lemon juice to taste. This serves six persons.

Tuna Fish Moray: Arrange the contents of two 7-ounce cans of tuna fish in individual, greased, earthenware baking dishes. Make a cream sauce of two tablespoons butter, two tablespoons flour, one tablespoon chopped onion, three-fourths cup of white stock (or a chicken bouillon cube), three-fourths cup of cream, or evaporated milk, four tablespoons Parmesan cheese and salt and pepper to taste. Pour over the fish. Sprinkle with more cheese. Dot with a little butter and brown in a hot oven or under the broiler. This serves six persons.

Shrimp and Lobster Ramekins au Gratin: Make a cheese sauce of one and one-half tablespoons butter, one and one-half tablespoons flour, one and one-half cups milk and one-third cup grated cheese. Season to taste. Add the contents of one 5½-ounce can of shrimps, cut in pieces, and the contents of a 6-ounce can of lobster, shredded. Pour into individual, flat, shallow ramekins, cover with buttered crumbs and brown in a hot oven. This serves five persons.

PLAINLY NOT BOSS

"Why do you think he is not boss in his own house?"

"Well, his radio set's in the attic and his workshop out in the woodshed—see?"

UNFORTUNATE WISH

"Well, Mary, I hear you are going to school now. How do you like it?"

"I don't like it at all. I wish I hadn't wished I was six years old."

GENEROUS!

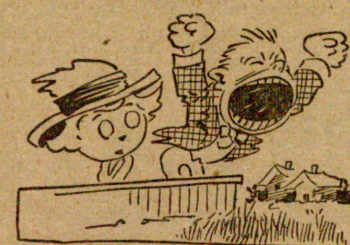

"He went broke in the lunchroom business."

"How so?"

"Tried to give two cherries in a pie!"

"Are you rooting?" she said, To one wild-eyed and red, And he shrieked, "No, I'm saying my prayers."

GREAT NEWS

Mr. Fly—I see where the bobbed-haired girls may become bald. Just think of all the new bald heads we can crawl over!

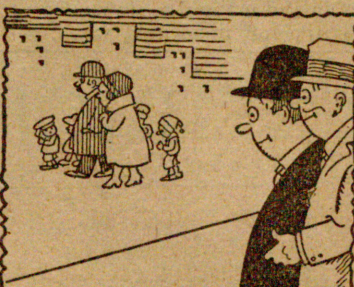

THE WAY TO FIX THAT

"Aren't you afraid you'll catch cold at the ball with this costume only painted on?"

"Yes! Perhaps you had better paint me a shawl around my shoulders."

STORK CRAZY

"That couple there just had their fifteenth child."

"They're stork crazy, I'd say."

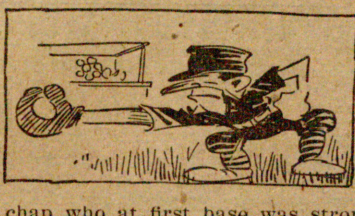

A LONG LEGGED BIRD

Little Bird—Why do you look so disgusted?

The Tall One—'Cause I can't find a pool to wade in that's even up to my knees!

OUT OF REACH

Former Desert Pest Now Valuable

ONCE a bristly desert pest, the cactus plant is now one of California's commercially valuable crops. Not only has it become a prime cattle fodder, but several delicious varieties of candy are made from its fruit, the cactus pear. Many a rancher who hopelessly tried to exterminate this plant, now declares a dividend from it. Norma Adkins, shown in the photograph, is holding one of the pears at a cultivated cactus patch near Pomona, Calif.

OUR CHILDREN'S STORY

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

THE BREEZES DECIDE TO HELP STRIPED CHIPMUNK

HAPPY JACK SQUIRREL and his cousin, Chatterer the Red Squirrel, stared at each other, and for a few minutes neither could find a word to say. What had become of all those brown nuts which the Merry Little Breezes had shaken down from the top of the tall chestnut tree, and over which they had quarreled and fought so bitterly? Not one was to be found. It was just as if there never had been any. The Merry Little Breezes knew what had become of them, and they chuckled. Sammy Jay knew what had become of them, and he chuckled the most of all. In fact, Striped Chipmunk was at that very minute tucking away the very last of those brown nuts in his secret storehouse. No wonder he chuckled.

They Found Him Running Along the Edge of the Green Forest Looking for More Nuts.

Of course, Happy Jack and Chatterer soon guessed that while they had been so foolishly quarreling, some one else had found those brown nuts and taken them away, but who that some one was they didn't know. What do you think they did after staring at each other for a few minutes? It sounds too foolish to tell, but they began to quarrel again. Yes, sir, Happy Jack and Chatterer began to quarrel again.

And then they went at it again, quarreling as bitterly as before and quite forgetting that there were more nuts in the trees waiting to be gath-

Striped Chipmunk's answer would be. "Can't! I'm too busy," replied Striped Chipmunk, snapping his bright eyes at them.

"Will you play with us after your work is done if we will help you do it?" asked one of the Merry Little Breezes.

Striped Chipmunk paused to sit up and chuckle, as only he can chuckle. "I'd like to know how you can help me?" said he.

"How do you think all those brown nuts happened to be on the ground, the ones you have just hidden away while your cousins were quarreling?" demanded a Merry Little Breeze.

"Why, I suppose they just dropped down," replied Striped Chipmunk wondrously.

"You're wrong!" shouted the Merry Little Breezes. "We shook them down for your cousins. But we wouldn't have done it if we had known that they would quarrel over them. Now they may climb the trees and gather the nuts for themselves for all we care."

"That is something I can't do very well," said Striped Chipmunk. "You know I am not much of a climber. I have to depend on what I find on the ground, and sometimes it is pretty hard work to find enough. I didn't know you shook those down, but I'm glad you did. Now I must get busy. When my work is done I'll play with you." Striped Chipmunk started to hurry on.

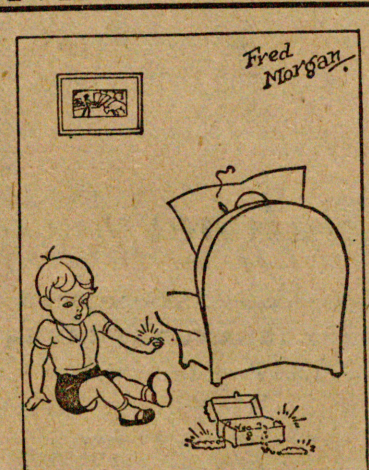

"Wait a minute," cried the Merry Little Breezes. "We are going to help you. You follow us and we'll shake down the nuts for you, but we must go where Happy Jack and Chatterer will not see what we are doing. What do you say to that?"

"Splendid!" cried Striped Chipmunk, chasing his tail from pure happiness. "Do you really mean it?"

"We certainly do!" cried the Merry Little Breezes. "Come on!"

Tempting Death by Poison Gases

DEATH stands nearby as these men calmly go about their business of breathing poisonous gases at an experimental station for testing gas masks in London, England. The masks are connected with a tank filled with the deadly fumes, which are inhaled by the men. DESSERT, FISH, MEAT SAUCES

A DELICIOUS sauce to serve on a cottage pudding or any steamed cake is:

Butterscotch Sauce.

To one cupful of boiling water add one cupful of brown sugar, two tablespoonfuls of flour, a dash of cinnamon, and one-fourth teaspoonful of salt thoroughly mixed. Cook until the flour has lost its raw taste and the mixture thickens, stirring to prevent lumping. Beat in two tablespoonfuls of butter and remove from the heat, adding one-half teaspoonful of vanilla or coffee extract. This is good served hot on ice cream, custard or baked puddings.

Hard Sauces.

Cream together one-fourth of a cupful of butter and three-fourths cupful of powdered sugar, add one-half teaspoonful of vanilla and one-eighth teaspoonful of grated nutmeg. Long beating makes a creamy, hard sauce. Add the sugar slowly. For variety substitute brown sugar and flavor with maple or grated lemon or orange rind.

Spanish Sauce.

Add two tablespoonfuls of chopped onion to two tablespoonfuls of butter and cook until tender and yellow. Add one chopped green pepper, one-half cupful of celery, two teaspoonfuls of minced parsley, one bay leaf, two cupfuls of tomato, one tablespoonful of flour and salt and pepper to taste. Blend the flour with a little butter before adding to the sauce. Cook for half an hour, remove the bay leaf,

THE WAY WE FIGURE

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

PUT down two and carry one, So arithmetic was done. In a schoolhouse ten by twenty, When some simple rule was plenty. Now the schoolhouse is as wide As the world where men abide, And I find, with problems bigger, That ain't now the way we figure.

Harder problem, harder school, And it takes a harder rule. Seems today, with all our troubles, What's divided always doubles. Here is what we seem to do: Put down one and carry two. Though the rules are simply stated, Life is much more complicated.

Soon it's two in place of one, So our troubles are begun, For there aren't very many Folks who never carry any. In life's school one rule is taught, That you never carry naught. Yet perhaps what makes 'em bigger Mostly is the way we figure.

GET PEARL FINISH FROM FISH SCALES

Chemists Have Found Uses for Former Waste.

Automobiles and fish scales sound as unrelated as cabbages and kings. Yet the first two are being joined with increasing frequency by the alchemy of industrial chemistry. From the scales of sardine herrings chemists are able to obtain the so-called pearl essence which is used in preparing the pearl finish on expensive automobiles. Pearl essence is used also in other products, such as imitation pearl knife handles and fountain pens and imitation pearls themselves.

Formerly boats, transporting sardine herrings from weirs to factories would dump overboard the huge quantities of scales that accumulated. The scales were just another of the nuisances of their business. Then came tempting offers to purchase this waste product, and today the fisherman retrieves the scales by ingenious methods and sell them at from 5 to 10 cents a pound. The demand for scales is steadily increasing as new uses for pearl essence is found.—New York Times.

Los Angeles Boy Needed Help

Leroy Young, 1116 Georgia St., Los Angeles, is a "regular fellow," active in sports, and at the top in his classes at school. To look at him now, you'd think he never had a day's sickness but his mother says: "When Leroy was just a little fellow, we found his stomach and bowels were weak. He kept suffering from constipation. Nothing he ate agreed with him. He was fretful, feverish and puny.

"When we started giving him California Fig Syrup his condition improved quickly. His constipation and biliousness stopped and he has had no more trouble of that kind. I have since used California Fig Syrup with him for colds and upset spells. He likes it because it tastes so good and I like it because it helps him so wonderfully!"

California Fig Syrup has been the trusted standby of mothers for over 50 years. Leading physicians recommend it. It is purely vegetable and works with Nature to regulate, tone and strengthen the stomach and bowels of children so they get full nourishment from their food and waste is eliminated in a normal way.

Four million bottles used a year shows how mothers depend on it. Always look for the word "California" on the carton to be sure of getting the genuine.

CLASS DISTINCTIONS

Exciting news from the American Association for the Advancement of Science: If your house has hardwood floors, a furnace, a library table, magazines, large rugs, bookcases, newspapers, a piano, a radio, you and your family belong to the upper classes, the scientists announce. But they say sadly, and firmly, if you heat your house with stoves, and your floors are soft wood and your rugs are small, alas! your social position is in jeopardy. And we ask, what all that can reasonably be said to do with the advancement of science? — Atchison Globe.

WASHINGTON HAS LARGE
TELEPHONE COLLECTIONSmithsonian Institute Houses
Models of Bell's Invention

Visitors to Washington, D. C., desirous of seeing the telephone exhibit of the Smithsonian Institute, will find it in the building known as the Old Museum—the same building that houses Colonel Lindbergh's "Spirit of St. Louis," and many other interesting things.

Includes Many Early Models

The telephone exhibit includes early models which now have great historic interest. The first model is one of the two original membrane magneto telephones used by Dr. Alexander G. Bell and Thomas A.
Watson, his assistant, in their first two-way long distance telephone tests, made between Boston and Cambridge on October 9, 1876. Although the distance was only two miles, this test was the forerunner of the vast system of long distance communication used by people all over the civilized world today.

A replica is shown of Bell's single pole membrane magneto telephone which was demonstrated at the Philadelphia Centennial Exhibit in 1876. There are also replicas of the harmonic telegraph transmitter and receiver used on that memorable occasion in June, 1875, when Bell first heard the twang on the transmitter reed plucked by Watson, and from which the first telephone to transmit speech sounds was developed.

Another interesting replica is of Bell's liquid transmitter and tuned reed receiver, which has an even greater historical significance, as it was with the original set of these instruments that the first complete sentence was transmitted on March 10, 1876. This date is recognized as the real beginning of telephony.

Modern Instruments Also Shown

Among other exhibits is an original box telephone of 1877 equipped with the "Watson Thumper," which was the first means devised for calling the person at the receiving end of the line to the telephone. An original large box telephone, one of the first put into commercial use is shown, as are also an early hand telephone developed in 1877, an 1878 model with a red band around the handle of the transmitter to indicate that sets so marked were for export only, several models of early commercial hand telephones, and the telephone used at the opening of the first transcontinental line between New York and San Francisco.

Along with the old models may also be seen one of the Bell System's newest hand telephones, the transmitter and receiver in one piece, with a dial mounted in its base.

The village board will meet in regular monthly session next Monday night.

On February 1st Miss Ruth Funk, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Funk entered the February class in the nurses training school in St. Luke's hospital in Chicago.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of Mrs. Peter
Peters who departed this life Feb. 9, 1932.

One year has passed since that sad day,

When the one we loved passed away.
God Called her home, it was His will,
But in our heart she is with us still.

A $1.50 Dinner for 6

TIMES are improving, but it would be hard to improve at the price on the following dinner for six people. We still want to get as much good food for as low a price as possible, and this dinner will cost, in most places, only twenty-five cents per person. It has the advantage, too, of including fish and so affording variety, for most people forget to eat fish more than once a week. Here's the menu:

Creamed Salmon, Peas and Cucumber 35c
Baked Stuffed Potatoes 15c
Broccoli 35c
Orange and Onion Salad 18c
Bread and Butter 10c
Peach Pudding 27c
Coffee with Cream 10c

Most of these foods are easy to cook, but you will need these recipes for the main dish and the dessert.

Creamed Salmon, Peas and Cucumber: Make a white sauce of four tablespoons butter, three tablespoons flour, two cups milk and salt and pepper. Add the contents of an 8-ounce can of peas, the salmon, flaked, from half a tall can, and half a cucumber, diced. Heat and serve.

Peach Pudding: Pour the sliced peaches from a No. 1 can into a baking dish, and sprinkle with one-half teaspoon cinnamon. Rub together one-half cup flour, one-half cup sugar and one-third cup butter, and spread on top. Bake in a hot 450° oven for about thirty minutes. Cool. Serve with two-thirds cup light cream.

LINCOLN ESTATES

The buncie party held at the Ann Rutledge school Saturday night was quite well attended and all present had a most pleasant time.

The Wm. Martin Post of the Veterans of Foreign Wars are busily engaged preparing for the Washington Birthday Party and dance they are to sponsor at the Frankfort hall on Saturday night, Feb. 25th.

Mrs. Henry Popp has been ill the past week and confined to bed.
